

After Chronos Info consultants participated and gained sufficient knowledge at the „Curing and preventing corruption“workshop held in Ohrid, Macedonia, in October last year, Partners foundation for local development FPDL and LGI – Local Government Initiative of the Open Society Institute, decided to grant, among others, our project called „Dissemination and implementation of the curing and preventing corruption approach at local Governments' level“. With this project we plan to confront this disease that is lingeringly mining society's economic standard intrinsically and undermining the basic values of social relations in a democratic and civil society.

This project, we have developed, intends to bring an active contribution in eradicating the corruption and malicious practice in Local Governments in Croatia. Being very much in line with National Anticorruption Programme launched by Croatian Government, project aims to prepare the number of trainers and consultants to be agents of change in corruption issues on the level of local governments and serve as an effective help for identifying, curing and preventing corruption, providing mayors and LGs with expertise, tools and instruments for action. We are claiming for the raise of public awareness about corruption, need to work on prevention and disseminating good practices

In that respect within the project activities we gained concession for translating and publishing book and two manuals that will serve to all the heroes caught in the exhausting fight against the corruption providing them full approach to the subject and practical examples. These publications are: two manuals “Restore the health of your organization“, Fred Fisher, Ana Vasilache and Nicole Rata, and the book “Corrupt Cities“ Robert Klitgaard, Ronald MacLean Abaroa i Lindsey H. Parris.

Along with publishing we will continue creating committed partnership with a network of organizations, institutions, NGOs and all the individuals willing to participate in process of change, organization of round tables on the subject, public discussions in order to inform and include citizens, creating seminars for trainers and consultants, and cooperation with pilot municipalities, that feel ready to apply all gained knowledge in practice in order to „heal“ their life surroundings.
